DOKUMENTINDHOLD

Aynard takker for Køpckes venlige brev. Hun beklager, at der har været så mange misforståelser. Det ville alt sammen have været fint bortset fra det med pengene. Da hun erfarede, at Køpcke ikke ville tro hende, fik hun sin bank til at lave en attestation på at hun har afregnet med Reuther. Hvis det ikke havde været for alle disse ekspeditioner, ville udstillingen slet ikke have været dyr. Nu er Joppolo bekymret over betegnelsen malerier, men hun tror det kun vil give problemer. Hun anmoder Køpcke om at bruge det samme firma, som forstod overførslen, men håber, at det ikke giver hende en høj udgift oveni.

TRANSSKRIFTION

Dear sir thank you for your nice letter. It is a pity we've had all these misunderstandings during this show, I hope they are vanished now; except one: about the money I owed you: Seeing that you wouldn't believe me I asked for an attestation from my bank about that transfer: so you can see I acted as you wished and settle your accounts with Mr. Reuther - Indeed the show wouldn't have been expensive, if we hadn't all those expeditions; and now these will be twice to pay for the return... and Joppolo was afraid of troubles for the mention "paintings" and wants to declare it is paintings you send but I fear it will bring more expenses and complications - will you please, sending back the other pictures, give them to the same firm which understood the first transfer. I hope you shall see that it is not for me a heavy cost in surplus, that was not foreseen - All my best compliments
